"...my open-flame grilling and rotisserie cooking is done over green mesquite and the bbq is smoked over post oak..."

About the Chef

Having spearheaded the ever-popular "Dekker's" restaurant in Fulshear, Texas, Chef Antonie Dekker is no stranger to success. Dekker hails from Holland where, as a boy, he was captivated by American TV westerns. Arriving stateside at 25, he held major culinary positions in Houston, Kemah and Minneapolis before returning to his beloved Texas as Executive Chef to the Houston Texans. He moved on to serve as private chef for one of south Texas' largest cattle ranches, pleasing the palates of notables from George HW Bush to George Strait. While Chef Dekker's passion is "great meat cooked on an open-fire mesquite grill," his menu reflects an obsession with all spectrums of tang. His gold standard: creative, scrumptious food delivered with impeccable service and genuine hospitality.
